

TEACHING FELLOWS

Columbia and Newberry College will provide a unique, inclusive experience for each incoming Teaching Fellow through a truly collaborative approach. Both schools are well-established, innovative and highly respected institutions and are positioned to make history as the first collaborative program in the state.

The South Carolina Teaching Fellows Program administered by CERRA:

- Recruits talented high school students for the teaching profession in SC
- Provides up to $24,000 (up to $6,000 a year/up to $5,700 for tuition and board and $300 for specific enrichment programs administered by CERRA) in Fellowship funds to pursue a degree leading to initial teacher certification
- Includes personal and professional development, service and enrichment opportunities
- Requires graduates to teach in a SC public school one year for every year they participate in the program
